A Guide to New York City's Best Hotel Restaurants

By Greg Morabito

Some of New York's most exciting restaurants are located inside of hotels. These establishments are ideal places for business breakfasts and leisurely lunches, and many of them are great choices for dinner and drinks, too. To coincide with Curbed NY's first-ever Hotels Week, here's a map of New York's best hotel restaurants:

The Mark Restaurant by Jean-Georges

If you're splurging, order the incredible black truffle pizza with fontina at Jean-Georges Vongerichten's ritzy restaurant inside The Mark Hotel. It's an ideal mid course, but it also makes for a great snack to share at the bar or in the front lounge area with a glass of Champagne. The menu also includes steaks, a cheeseburger with black truffle dressing, light vegetable dishes, and simply prepared proteins. If you go on a weeknight, you might see some famous faces in the room.
